Wife Beater Given County Jail Term

MARTINEZ, Nov. 27.—William Puccinelli, 45, Martinez fish dealer will serve a sentence of seven and one-half months in the county jail as the result of an alleged beating he is said to have inflicted on his wife last night.

He drew an additional term of one and one-half months on the action of the county parole board revoking parole given him on a previous charge of distrubance of the peace, on which charge he was liberated after serving 45 days of a 90 day sentence.

He is alleged to have threatened his wife with a butcher knife in addition to the beating in which he pleaded guilty. Witnesses passing Puccinelli's market reported the matter to the sheriff's office and Deputy Sheriff J. M. Joseph arrived on the scene as Puccinelli was renewing his attack on his wife according to the sheriff's report.

DEATH TOLL OF LAST STORM MOUNTS TO MORE THAN 100

MANILA, Nov. 27—(U.P.)—A new typhoon was reported approaching Guam, and the Phillipine Islands today while fragmentary reports from the southern islands of the Philippine group indicated the death toll from two storms in the past week would total more than 100.

Reports that more than 200 had been killed were prevalent here but they were unreliable because information from the stricken areas was gained entirely from native runners. All lines of communication had been broken by the gales and the messages of the runners were probably duplicated at times.

Four destroyers were to leave here today for the south with food and medical supplies.

Governor General Henry L. Stimson, called a conference of Army and Navy communications chiefs to meet at 9 o'clock this morning and formulates a plan for re-establishment of rapid transmission of messages so that rescue work might be carried on efficiently.

The center of the latest storm which occurred Monday seemed to be on the island of Samar, where the velocity of the wind exceeded 70 miles an hour. Ninety percent of the houses on Samar were said to have been damaged. Four fifths of the roads and public works were impassible or out of commission while it was believed at least 20 percent of the crops had been destroyed.

Graveyard Of Ships At Benicia Doomed

MARTINEZ, Nov. 27.—The "harbor of war time ships" is no more on the Pacific Coast.

Today announcement was made that the General Engineering and Drydock company of Oakland has purchased the freighters Diablo and Mohinkis from the U. S. Shipping board. A reported price of $25,000 was paid for each of the vessels. The ships will be fitted with Diesel engins and will be placed in service, it is expected. Both ships were built at the Bay Point plant of the Pacific Coast Shipbuilding company of Oakland.

THOSE CRUISERS

Press reports from London state that modern Japanese destroyers far outclass the fastest and most powerful American warships of this class. It is true. The Navy Department admits the fact. They say that the United States lags behind all the Washington treaty—where this government got shamefully buncoed—powers in the construction of the super-destroyer, the latest and most potent war development, while every other nation has several of the fast and powerful, heavy "light cruisers." The United States does not have a single ship, with none either building or appropriated for.

The Pacifists have been active—and successful—in their inept opposition to the building of such ships. Efforts to persuade congress to include nine destroyer leaders in the naval construction bill were defeated.

So we face the world in this respect outweighed, outspeeded outgunned and outmanned.

Japan has 24 super destroyers built and in the building. Great Britain has 17 built and one building. France has seven built, three building and nine appropriated for while Italy has 20 built and nine building.

The United States has 12 destroyers authorized under the 1916 naval expansion bill, but funds for construction have never been appropriated. We are not building them.

These vessels are necessary in order to direct the maneuvers of the destroyer squadron, obtain accurate information of the distance, course and speed of the enemy and transmit this information accurately and expeditiously They must be speedier, and larger than the ordinary destroyer, must have better sea-keeping qualities and a steadier observation platform. We should have them but we have not. So the secretary of the navy laments. The nation should lament with him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A MISTAKEN MISSIONARY

Charles Smith, the hunger-striking atheist, who divided the headlines with Al Smith during the last few days of the campaign, is in error when he attributes to the 40,000,000 Americans who do not go to church a disbelief in God.

He takes an entirely wrong way to promote his religion. For lack of belief, when pushed by missionary tactics, is as much a religion as any that falls among the classifications of creeds and denominations. If Mr. Smith wanted to be entirely consistent in his faith, he would assume that a state of mind that excludes all devoutness should be spread by lack of proselytizing.

America is essestially a religious country. Its people are far more earnestly convinced of the Supreme Power and a divine benevolence that many populations and races which adhere to a good deal of form and ceremony.

The total church membership in the United States is 40,000,000. Smith believes that another 15,000,000 believe in God but don't belong to any church. He arbitrarily places the remaining inhabitants in the class of atheists and estimates that about 109,999 of them admit it.

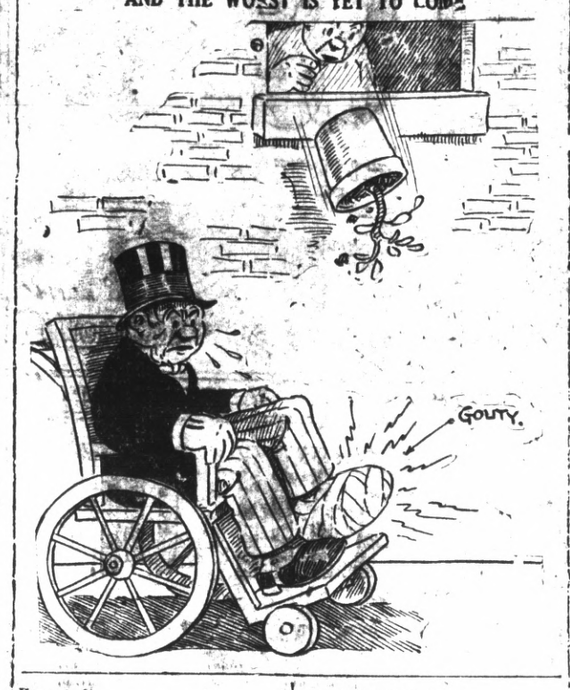
We believe that everyone has some kind of a god. The human system requires it. Even people who are crazy have a niche in their being where a deity of some size or description must be enshrined even though the rites of worship are neglected.

Otherwise we would not be human beings, but animals of a very inferior order in the scale of evolution. The higher we have evolved as individuals, the greater and more glorious is the God to whom we must bow.

Mexico is in such a state of nervous tension that an automobile back-firing is liable to start a fresh revolution any moment.

Knitted ensemble for the larger woman consits of a one-piece frock with pleated skirt and a three-quarter length coat in slate blue.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME



BEAUTY

No intelligent woman will wait until her neck begins to have that sagging look which presages advancing years to take proper care of this part o fher body.

Even if the lines of your throat are firm and youthful now remember that the evil day will come when its contour will lose its beauty if you don't cleanse nourish and stimulate the skin and exercise the neck muscles.

The care of the skin on your neck and under your chin should be the same as that on your face and hands. After cleansing thoroughly pat in a skin food briskly always working upward and outward, and follow with a skin tonic or astringent. Bleaching once a week or oftener is necessary with lemon juice (which should be left on all night after carefully removing every trace of cleansing cream) will prevent discoloration

Now for the exercises:

Stand upright with shoulders squared and stretch the neck forward as far as you can without moving the shoulders. Do this several times and then turn the head slowly to the right until the chin is over the shoulder and then lower the chin until it touches the shoulder. Repeat over left shoulder.

In the same position, lower the chin until it touches the chest and then make it a rotary motion with the head going back as far as you can.

When you first begin these exercises, do them only two or three times and then increase them gradually until you can do them ten or fifteen times without a suspicion of soreness in any muscle. Don't be frightened by the creaking and craking when you begin—these merely indicate how much your neck muscles need limbering up.

Dear Judie,

I am going south very soon and want your advice about a smart costume to wear on the train and later on for motoring. I prefer it without fur and as I am not overly slender I must have straight lines. I have no color preference. Have blue eyes and light brown hair.

Florida-Bound.

Since you have no color preference may I suggest blue? It is always a good choice for a blue-eyed woman, besides which it is ultra smart at the moment and is expected to continue throughout the spring. I like the costume illustrated. It happens to be a knitted one, but of course can be copied in a soft weolcrepe or other cloth.

Yours for Style,

JUDIE.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless. And it works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

Tuxtant, he swooped down on the wrecked enemy plane. Boastfully he stooped to snatch its tattered insignia from the wing. And then he recoiled in terror. He had shot down his best friend. A stirring story of love and friendship. An epic picture of the American war "Ace" in France.

WAR LEADERS LAUD FILM 'WINGS'

The greatest compliment ever given to a motion picture company by the war department has been bestowed upon Paramount for its war epic of the air, 'Wings' which will be screened the last times today at the California theatre.

A memorial to cost $10,000 and dedicated to the famous Second Division will be erected in Washington, because of their accuracy, still pictures from the photoplay are to be used as models in constructing the huge memorial.

Paramount constructed an exact duplicate of a sector of St. Mihiel in order to obtain the spectacular battle shots which climax "Wings" and these so impressed war department officials that they asked permission of Jesse L. Lasky to model from the stills.

"Wings" was directed by William Wellman, who was a flyer in the famous Lafayette Escadrille. John Monk Saunders, an instructor in aviation during the war, wrote the story. The cast includes Clara Bow, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Richard Arlen, Jobyna Ralston, Gary Cooper, Arlette Marchal, H. B. Walthall, Hedda Hopper, Claire McDowell El Brendel Gunboat Smith.

Prevent Flu—Check Colds Immediately

Families in Richmond Urged To Be Careful

While grip and influenza are so prevalent local people are urged to use this modern way of checking little colds before they become big.

Have a jar of Vicks Vapo-Rub on hand ready for instant use at the first sign of every cold. When rubbed on throat and chest, or snuffed up the nose Vicks releases its ingredients in the form of medicated vapors which are breathed in direct to the infected parts.

In addition Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "draining out" all tightness and pain, loosening phlegm, clearing the head, and easing the difficult breathing.

To prevent colds from lowering the vitality and thus paving the way for flu and pneumonia, they should be treated direct, and instantly—as you would an infected finger. —adv.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Davis, recently married to May Davis, is having lunch with Joe Babbitt and his friend, Myra Pfeffer, when Babbitt is called away. May happens into the same hotel an dis furious at seeing her husband with a girl. She drops her gloves and they are returned by Claude Beranger-de Brie, a perfumer, who presents his card. Davis, trying to explain the situation, invites the first man he sees, de Brie, to lunch and leaves him with Myra. Then, in order to turn the tables, Davis accuses May of having a flirtation with de Brie. More angry than ever, May tries to elude Davis by going to her hairdresser.

"I beg your pardon!" She stared at him coldly. "This gentleman's annoying me." She turned to the elevator boy—this time a beaming negro.

The boy looked from the man to the woman. Davis reached his hand into his pocket and drew forth a dollar bill. He slipped it into the boy's hand.

"I happen to be this lady's husband. We're just having a nice, friendly quarrel, that's all," he announced casually.

A row of white teeth gleamed in the dusky face of the boy. He nodded as though he understood.

"Tenth floor, please," May called as the car ran past the ninth.

"Let's kiss and make up."

"Tenth flo', lady," the boy announced. "An' luck's what 'Ah hopes you ain't got nothin' else, but, Mistah!" he called after the departing figure of Davis.

"You and me both," Davis retorted, hurrying down the hall after his wife.

"Good afternoon." May burst into the hairdressing salon and approached the appointment desk.

"Oh, good afternoon, Mrs. Davis. You haven't an appointment, have you?" The girl behind the desk scanned her book. "What did you want?"

"Could—do you think Peter could take me for a trim—right away?" She turned and saw the figure of her husband outlined in the doorway.

"Well, let me see." The girl scanned her book once more, frowning. "He's terribly busy, but maybe he could work you in between customers. Just a minute. I'll ask him." She got up and disappeared into an inner room.

"May, you might just as well talk to me, because I'm not going to leave until you do." Davis stepped up beside his wife and laid an appealing hand on her arm.

"I've already told you I have nothing to say to you."

"Well, but I've got a lot to say to you."

"I'm not interested."

"Peter says if you'll wait a few minutes he'll take you, Mrs. Davis." The girl returned to her desk.

"Thank you." May walked over to a lounge and seated herself, picked up a magazine and began to read.

For a moment Davis waited, contemplatively, thoughtfully. Then he strode determinedly across the room.

"Now look here, May, you're going to listen to me whether you want to or not," he began. "I'm going to tell you the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

"How can I tell whether it's the truth or not? You're probably quite an adapt liar by this time," she retorted.

"I'm nothing of the sort, and you know it," Davis returned hotly. "But I'm not going to allow an entirely strange woman—who means nothing in either of our lives—to cause us to quarrel."

"Well, she was certainly a stranger to me, but I can't say she looked as though she was to you."

"Be quiet," Davis commanded. "I'm talking."

May looked up, too surprised to make any answer. She had never heard her husband use that tone of voice to her. Before she could bring herself to reply Davis was hurrying on. He had the advantage and he knew it. He hadn't gained anything by cajoleries, and he had decided to try other tactics.

"I made a luncheon engagement with Joe Babbitt several days ago," he was explaining. "I get so blamed sick of looking at women in the office that it's a relief to get out and talk to a man once in a while. And I usually meet someone at noon or else go to the club. I was good and fed up this morning at the office, and I was glad to have a chance to talk to Joe. When I arrived at the Grill the first thing I saw was this woman seated at the table and Joe introduced her as a friend of his."

"It all sounds very pretty," May interrupted, but there was little spirit in her voice. In fact, she had become just slightly tired of the game she had been playing, but she was not yet willing to admit it. Down in her heart she realized that she trusted Ed, and she knew that her threats to leave him were empty ones, but she had been angry, and she thought she would teach him a lesson in time.

"Pretty and true," Davis continued. "But, as I was saying—"

"Please don't bother. I'm not interested." May started to rise.

"You'll sit here and listen if I have to knock you unconscious." Davis' mouth suddenly became a grim, determined line. May sat down.

"As I was saying, Joe introduced me to this woman, and I was sore because he'd brought her along. Then to add to everything, Joe received a telephone message and said that he had to dash back to the office. Personally, I think his wife was on the warpath. But that's neither here nor there. I was left alone with that girl. I didn't know her, and I didn't care anything about her. I was trying to get away without appearing absolutely rude when you walked in."

"I saw you holding her hand," May interposed.

"You saw me doing nothing of the kind," Davis retorted. "I suspect her of trying to have a mild flirtation, in which I was not in the slightest interested. And then when you walked in I was so upset I couldn't see straight. And when you wouldn't speak to me I was almost wild. Of course I realized what you were thinking, and my only idea was to do something quick, and I resorted to that silly subterfuge, which you saw through immediately. I'm sorry about the whole thing, but that's the honest truth. You believe me, don't you, May?" He leaned towards her and tried to take her hand.

"Well, you didn't need to accuse me of flirting with a strange man in the hotel," May parried.

"I wasn't accusing you, darling. I swear I wasn't. It was stupid of me to say what I did, I'll admit, but I suppose I was trying to divert your mind from myself, and I snatched at any straw—"

"Yes, you must have snatched at any straw if you picked out your luncheon companion." With her returning spirits May was resorting to the "catty" feminine.

"I agree with you," Davis acceded good naturedly, "but, you see, I didn't pick her. And what I can't understand is how you could think I picked her after I'd picked you. You must admit I have good taste, at least. And you know I never did like brunettes. In fact, I belong to the group of gentlemen who prefer."

In spite of herself May had to smile. She didn't in the least feel like being angry any more. She felt that Ed was telling the truth, and after all—well, they had only been married for three months and she couldn't find it in her heart to hold resentment.

"You know I don't love anyone else but you, darling," Davis continued. "Don't let's quarrel any more." He puts his arm around her.

"Oh, Ed, don't—everybody's looking." May blushed as she saw several of the waiting customers smiling over their magazines.

"I don't care if the whole world's looking if you'll only say you've forgotten all about this—this affair. If you don't, I'll—I'll kiss you right here and now," he threatened.

"Oh, Ed, don't be silly. We're acting just like a pair of newlyweds."

"Well, aren't we? Hurry up and tell me you'll forgive me—and I'll take you out and buy you the biggest bottle of perfume we can find."

WOMAN AGAIN IDENTIFIES ATTACKER

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 27.—(U.P.)—For the second time in the past week, Mrs. G. Harold Stribling, injured victim of a "hatchet attack" positively identified Jake Bird Louisiana negro as the man who crushed her husband's skull in the Stribling home with blows from an ax.

Mrs. Stribling suffered a broken nose in the attack.

Bird is held as a suspect in the murder of three Omaha persons killed by blows delivered by a "hatchet slayer" here several days ago.

Mob Feared

"As God is my judge, there stands the man," Mrs. Stribling said in a hospital here where bird was brought late today. The negro was brought here under heavy guard from the state penitentiary at Lincoln, where he was taken last Friday to prevent possible mob violence.

Mrs. Stribling has identified Bird as the attacker last Friday when she said: "that is the man, take him away."

Since that time, some doubt arose as to whether she was positive in her identification and the decision to bring him here to be viewed again, was made.

Blamed In Attack

Her second identification placed the blame for the attack in the Stribling home on Bird and brought suspicion that the negro may be the man who struck terror throughout Omaha and surrounding territory by a trio of slayings. In all the murders the victims heads were crushed with an ax.

Mrs. Stribling in identifying Bird today pleaded with the negro to "tell the truth" and reminded him that she had "kept my word not to tell detectives."

This last statement was taken by many to mean that Mrs. Stribling had promised her assailant she would not turn him over to police.

WALES RUSHES TO BEDSIDE OF KING

S. Enterprise—which was making 38 miles an hour tonight enroute to Dar-se-salm, on the east coast of Africa. The prince and his brother, the duke of Gloucester, will be taken aboard the cruiser there.

The prince's decision to return was made after he was notified by cable of his father's condition today in a message which intimated that it would be best if he returned immediately, it was learned from reliable sources. Previous messages had kept the prince in touch with the king's condition and advised him to remain close to the single telegraph office in the jungle territory.

Message Received

The message received by Premier Stanley Baldwin tonight was dated at Dodoma. It said:

"In view of the illness of his majesty, the king, my brother and I are returning to England as soon as possible."

In that crisp message which was rushed by courier to the Dodoma telegraph office and sent crackling over wires and cables to London, the heir to the British throne readily gave up what was believed to be his last real vacation.

Due to King George's advancing age, and increasing restrictions upon the prince's time, observers pointed out when the prince started for Africa that probably he would not find occasion to leave London again for a prolonged visit before he becomes ruler.

BRITAIN ASKS NAVY SHIP PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—(U.P.)—Acting on his own initiative, Rep. Fred A. Britten of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, has sent a private cablegram to Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, proposing that the house naval affairs committee meet in Canada with a naval committee of the British parliament and discuss the cruiser controversy between the United States and Great Britain.

Rep. Britten told the United Press tonight he had not consulted with President Coolidge nor with the state department before taking this action regarding a a question which has been the subject of much discussion between the two governments for more than a year. Britten prepared his cablegram to Baldwin and sent it from his office here.

Nothing Improper

Britten told the United Press he saw nothing improper in this procedure, unusual as it is, because he acted not only as chairman of the house naval affairs committee but also in his capacity as a vice-president of the inter parliamentary union.

Britten said he learned today his cablegram had leaked out but whether here or in London he did not know and he published it with a statement asserting he acted entirely within his congressional authority.

"There should be no misconstruction of my communication nor of my purpose," he said.

Old Law Recalled

State department officials had not heard of the matter until asked about it by the United Press. They recalled that an old statute, the Logan act, forbids direct communication between a citizen of the United States and a foreign government about affairs of state but it was suggested this was intended to apply to persons revealing information in a harmful way and that Rep. Britten in trying to bring about a friendly solution of a controversy was trying to be helpful and could hardly be called to account under that law.

It was also recalled Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, set a precedent when more than a year ago he engaged in an exchange of communications with President Calles of Mexico. At that time there were frowns at the state department and attention was called vaguely to the Logan act but Borah smiled and nobody did anything.

Text of Message

Britten's cablegram to Premier Baldwin said:

"Recalling your publicly expressed desire of Nov. 13 for more frequent personal discussions between American and British representatives and remembering very pleasantly my personal participation in interparliamentary conferences both here and in Europe, I am impelled to suggest a joint meeting of the committee on naval affairs of the United States house of representatives and a select committee of members of parliament for the purpose of friendly discussion and the hearing of testimony in connection with applying the principle of equality in sea power between Great Britain and the United States, on all ships of war not already covered by the Washington treaty. Meeting to take place, preferably in Canada, after March 4, 1929, and each committee will report with recommendations to its respective government just as may now be done annually by the various groups of the interparliamentary union. Where there is so much genuine regret among the people of England and America over the failure of the last Geneva naval limitation conference, surely some way should be found for a meeting before 1931 when the five leading naval powers will again assemble at Washington. I will respect your personal desires in connection with these suggestions

LOCAL BOY NOT TO START IN BIG GAME

Carrol Pitchford, Richmond high school star, will not be in the starting lineup when the Saint Mary's football team meets the Santa Clara eleven at San Francisco tomorrow afternoon. Pitchford has been suffering from a bad shoulder this year and has not appeared in the Saint's lineup as much as he did last year. Pitchford may be subbed for "Toots" Gasper, who will start the game.

Adam Weisgerber, another Richmond high school boy, will start at tackle for the Saints. Adam has been playing a good game in the line this year. He and Pitchford have another year to play.

The Kezar stadium, site of the "little big game" is expected to be filled to its capacity of 60,000 fans. Although a large number of tickets have been sold, there are still a number on hand which may be purchased at the gate.

Monday night the students at St. Mary's held a gigantic pep rally preparatory to the game. Schoolsings, speeches by Coach Slipadigan and football stars featured the rally.

The Saints and Broncos are rated at about equal for the big contest. Both teams have been playing good football throughout the season. Last Saturday the Saints took it easy when the Broncos rambled over the Fresno state college outfit 83 to 0.

Fans in the bay district can expect a good game tomorrow.

Suspect Held In Rohstein Gang Slaying

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—(U.P.)—Two boyhood friends kept an appointment today and put the Rothstein case on a business basis.

Their handclasp started a quick succession of events that did not pause until one of them, George A. McManus—"Honest George" sought for 23 days as the man who "could clear up the killing of Arnold Rothstein in three minutes"—was locked up in Tombs prison without bail, charged with Rothstein's murder.

McManus, protesting his innocence through his lawyer, but keeping his own lips tightly compressed, awaits examination Friday morning.

District Attorney Joab Banton and the police however, did not try to conceal their happiness. After more than three weeks their star witness had yielded to their entreaties and given himself up.

It was made by Detective John Cordes, yound ace of the homicide experts and McManus's boyhood friend. The long-missing gambler had put one feather in his one time schoolmate's cap by surrendering to him during the morning.

NICARAGUA IN WELCOME TO HOOVER

should on this occasion be welcomed no. only by the president of Nicaragua, but by the president elect and a former president," Hoover said at a luncheon.

"You represent the political parties of Nicaragua, which lately have been in conflict, making this occasion of much more than ordinary interest. It represente a consolidation of forces for domestic peace. It demonstrates that the difficulties of a national crisis, into which my own country has been drawn, has now reached a basis of solution which merits the deepest thankfulness of all our peoples and for which I wish to congratulate the leaders of the Nicaraguan nation."

Streamer Welcomes

A great streamer labelled "Hoover, Moncada and Friendship" was stretched across the arch of welcome under which Hoover passed upon his arrival from the battleshsip Maryland. Flowers were strewn on the dock and 15 airplanes circled overhead as the official party landed. The cruisers Rochester and Tulsa were in the harbor flying full dress pennants, and a marine battalion was drawn up.

The regular complement of 85 marines, commanded by Capt. Lester A. Dessez, rejoined the battleship here. These were the first marines to leave Nicaragua since the election.

Passing between lanes of people, Hoover went under the friendship arch to the customs house, where he conferred in turn with Diaz, Chamorro and other officials.

Mrs. Hoover was presented to local officials and their wives at the Lupone hotel, where President elect Moncada escorted her.

Cheering crowds followed the official parties, shouting "Viva Hoover!" and the Star Spangled Banner was played as Mrs. Hoover entered the hotel where she visited for a short time before the party returned to the Maryland for luncheon with Nicaraguan officials.

Yesterday he went into court, was fined $5 on the speeding charge and $10 for failing to observe the citation.

ESTATE ROW OF EL CERRITAN INVOLVED

MARTINEZ, Nov. 23—Litigation over the estate of John Buckley of El Cerrito promises to grow involved.

Henry Hocker, a creditor of the estate, is seeking to have Mrs. Nellie Glover removed as administratrix of the $4000 estate.

A handwriting expert is to be called to determine the genuineness of two wills purported to have been executed by Mrs. Mary Buckley, widow. The county's two judges have been disqualified from acting in either case.

Due to the litigation, Raymond Johnson, public administrator, has urged Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado to have determined by an expert the genuineness of two wills in the widow's estate. Mrs. Buckley died in August, 1928.

Johnson filed a will executed on May 11, 1919, in which Mrs. Buckley bequeathed her property to her husband. A second will, dated Jan. 8, was subsequently found, in which the estate was bequeathed to Mrs. Glover, who had been named guardian of Mrs. Buckley as an alleged incompetent some months previously.

Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie disqualified himself to try the John Buckley estate contest because of testimony laid before him in previous estate matters.

Judge Alvarado will be disqualified through summons as a witness to testify on proceedings in his court and statements made to him in guardianship proceedings.

Hooker is seeking Mrs. Glover's removal on the grounds that she failed to account for estate assets and misrepresented Mrs. Buckley's age when she was named guardian for the woman. The contest is expected to develop issues of Mrs. Buckley's competency to make a will.

Judge Alvarado today announced that he will name a handwriting expert to determine the genuineness of the wills, action that he is permitted to take until steps are taken to summon him as a witness.

Kiwanis Club Thanksgiving Fete Today

Thanksgiving day will be celebrated by the members of the Richmond Kiwanis club at luncheon in the Hotel Carquinez today. William P. Butler, district trustee from Oakland Kiwanis club, will be the speaker, delivering his address on the "Underprivileged Man." Rev. Weldon Wilson will be chairman of the day and Theo Modson, president, will preside.

Arrangements are being completed for installation of the new officers to take place the first meeting in January.

Mrs Emma Dewey Given Divorce

MARTINEZ, Nov. 27.—On the grounds of cruelty, Mrs. Emma Cabral Dewey was today granted a decree of divorce from her second husband, Alvin Dewey of San Pablo. Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie heard the suit.

Underwriter Lauds Reduced Fire Loss Here

W. H. Kelly, superintendent of the board of fire underwriters of the Pacific Coast, in a letter to Councilman A. L. Paulsen yesterday congratulated Richmond on the efficent record set by its fire department during the last year resulting in five honors being received by the department.

He stated that the low fire insurance rates which became effective in 1927 were directly traceable to the low fire loss record of the city during the last few years. Basing of the reductions was on the improvement made in water protection furnished the city, including new mains, a new pumping station and additional hydrants; increased efficiency in the fire department; improvements in the fire alarm system and better building regulations and fire prevention ordinances.

The records of 91 companies for 1924 show the low loss here of only 24.6 per cent of the premium paid by policy holders, Kelly stated, and that the record was instrumental in securing the rate reduction in 1927. The amount of the reduction was from 5.8 to 10.6 per cent on business property and substantial reductions were made on dwellings in the residence districts.

Local Teachers To Elect Soon

Herbert Hann, principal of the Junior high school and Miss Norine Buchanan, instructor of journalism have been nominated for the presidency of the Richmond Teachers' association. Election will be held in the near future.

Miss Margaret Skinner, of Roosevelt; Miss Dorothy Cox and Miss Gertrude Weatherby, of the high school have been nominated for vice-president; Miss Blanche Kermer is the only nomination for secretary and C. P. MacLafferty is treasurer.

Mrs. C. J. Ross Mother Of Girl

The many Richmond friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ross of Berkeley will be pleased to learn of the birth of baby girl to Mrs. Ross. The little miss arrived in time for the big game Saturday morning. Mrs. C. J. Ross and baby are doing nicely at the Alta Bates Hospital in Berkeley. The baby has been named Carol Elizabeth.

POSTMASTER URGES EARLY MAILING

There will be no mail deliveries on Christmas Day so Richmond persons desiring to have their packages arrive in time are urged to mail them early, according to Postmaster J. N. Long.

"Every effort will be made to handle the Christmas mails without congestion and delay," Long said, "but owing to the enormous volume this can be done only with the cooperation of the public."

The following suggestions were made by Long for those mailing packages:

All packages must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Strong Boxes

Candies must be inclosed in strong outside boxes or containers.

Wrap cut flowers with tissue to insure moisture and place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin or corrugated cardboard.

Articles easily broken must be carefully packed, crated or securely wrapper. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, tissue waste or like materials in, around and between the articles and outside the container.

Glassware, pottery, fragile toys or crockery must be packed so that in case the articles are broken in transit the pieces will not protrude, damaging other boxes.

Must Be Marked

All articles easily broken must be marked "fragile."

Use special delivery stamps for articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation. This will expedite delivery. All such articles must be marked "perishable."

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. The required amount of postage should be affixed in the upper right corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the stamp or parcel post window.

Complete Address

All addresses should be complete with house number and name of street, post office or rural route number. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

"The volume of mail during the holiday time increases approximately 200 percent," Long stated. "It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of Christmas presents, cards, and letters by Christmas Day, the public should shop and mail early. Packages and letters should be ready for mailing at least two weeks or 10 days before Christmas, depending upon the distance.

Richard Dunn Gets Probation

MARTINEZ, Nov. 27—Richard Dunn of Richmond was sentenced to three years probation on a plea of guilty to a charge of issuing a worthless check for $33 to A. G. Papadakis Richmond merchant. As part of the sentence he began serving a term of seven months in the county jail.

Dunn, alleged companion of David Phillips, denied participation in a series of 32 crimes confessed by Phillips.
